

FALL 2009 CRIMINAL JUSTICE MONDAY NIGHT FILM SERIES

The Department of Criminal Justice is pleased to present the third annual Monday Night Film Series. This year's series begins on Monday, September 14.

Each Monday evening during the Fall 2009 semester (starting September 14), the Department of Criminal Justice will be hosting a screening of crime and criminal justice -themed movies in Tuttleman 101 at 5:15 pm. The series is free and open to the entire Temple University community. All films are shown uncut and without interruption. Selections include contemporary and classic films on topics relevant to crime and the criminal justice system, including gang and youth violence, capital punishment, violence against women, drugs and crime, the social construction of crime and justice, and prisoner re-entry. There will be some time for discussion of the film afterward.

Please join us Monday evenings this semester for some great and thought-provoking films. All screenings will be held in Tuttleman 101 at 5:15 pm.

FILM SCHEDULE

September 14: Pineapple Express (2008, David Gordon Green)

September 21: Standard Operating Procedure (2006, Errol Morris)

September 28: A Clockwork Orange (1971, Stanley Kubrick)

October 5: Hard Candy (2005, David Slade)

October 12: Crips and Bloods: Made in America (2008, Stacy Peralta)

October 19: Indictment: The McMartin Trial (1995, Mick Jackson)

October 26: Crazy Love (2007, Dan Klores)

November 2: The Executioner's Song (1982, Lawrence Schiller)

November 9: Party Monster (2003, Fenton Bailey)

November 16: Straight Time (1978, Ulu Grosbard)

November 23: Girl 27 (2006, David Stenn)

November 30: Requiem for a Dream (2000, Darren Aronofsky)

December 7: Taxi Driver (1976, Martin Scorsese)

Contact: email auerhahn@temple.edu with any questions.