the PLEASURES and PITFALLS

Thursday, April 2nd, 12 – 6pm

Center for the Humanities at Temple (CHAT),
10th Floor, Gladfelter Hall

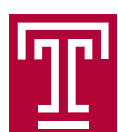

The CHAT Graduate Fellows are pleased to announce a symposium on “The Pleasures and Pitfalls of Interdisciplinary Research.” This practical conference will inquire into the mechanics of producing work that intersects and transcends various knowledge terrains.

What pedagogical approaches (such as team teaching) can we adopt in order to better develop and teach courses on issues that do not fit neatly in one or another discipline?

What are the keys for successful, publishable interdisciplinary research, and how can we articulate our work to speak intelligibly to a variety of fields? The three panels on Pedagogy, Publication, and Praxis will provide participants with both new tools and the opportunity to dialogue with established interdisciplinary scholars from across the academic spectrum.

For those hungry in both body and mind, lunch and light refreshments will be provided throughout. Our scholastic door prizes will also help you retain and implement the insights developed in the course of the afternoon!
