

Co-Sponsorship Guidelines Center for the Humanities at Temple

Although CHAT dedicates most of its resources to programs that it initiates, it reserves some funds for proposals it receives from individuals, departments, or colleges within the Temple community. We encourage interdisciplinary proposals and proposals that have pledges of support from more than one department or program, including participation from units outside the College of Liberal Arts. CHAT will consider providing grants of $100 to $200 to supplement other funding for such proposals.

To apply, please send a 3-6 page description of the project. We ask that you explain the rationale for your proposal, focusing on how you see this presentation/conference/activity contributing to humanistic research and study at Temple and appealing to diverse disciplines. If you believe your proposal can lead to further projects and programs, please elaborate. Also please include a list of the sponsoring organization(s) or department(s), the invited participants, if applicable (with CVs or biographical sketches), the intended audience, the proposed date(s) of the program, publicity plans, the amount requested with a short budget, and what other sources of funding you expect or have applied for.

Please send your proposal as an electronic attachment to Peter Logan, Acting Director, Center for the Humanities, at plogan@temple.edu.

There is no deadline for Co-Sponsorship requests. New applications are evaluated on a rolling schedule. Applications may be transmitted electronically or in print. Please contact Peter Logan with any questions, at peter.logan@temple.edu. Forward applications to:
