Animal Passions and Beastly Virtues
Reflections on Redecorating Nature

Marc Bekoff
Foreword by Jane Goodall

An engaging, thoughtful look at the science and ethics of research into animal behavior

What is it really like to be a dog? Do animals experience emotions like pleasure, joy, and grief? Marc Bekoff’s work draws world-wide attention for its originality and its probing into what animals think about and know as well as what they feel, what physical and mental skills they use to live successfully within their social community. Bekoff’s work, whether addressed to scientists or the general public, demonstrates that investigations into animal thought, emotions, self-awareness, behavioral ecology, and conservation biology can be compassionate as well as scientifically rigorous.

In Animal Passions and Beastly Virtues, Bekoff brings together essays on his own ground-breaking research and on what scientists know about the remarkable range and flexibility of animal behavior. His fascinating and often amusing observations of dogs, wolves, coyotes, prairie dogs, elephants, and other animals playing, leaving and detecting scent-marks ("yellow snow"), solving problems, and forming friendships challenge the idea that science and the ethical treatment of animals are incompatible.

“Animal Passions and Beastly Virtues is a book for scientists and non-scientists alike. The writing is clear so that even complex subjects can be readily understood by the general public. Marc has the courage of his convictions and is an excellent spokesman for animals. He has learned so much from watching animals and empathizing with them, and by publishing this collection of essays, he hopes to share this knowledge with as many people as possible. I will share Animal Passions and Beastly Virtues with colleagues and friends around the world.”—Jane Goodall

In the series Animals, Culture, and Society, edited by Arnold Arluke and Clinton R. Sanders

Animals/Nature/Sociology
DECEMBER 344 pp.
3 tables
6 x 9"
Paper £17.95 $26.95 1-59213-348-7
Cloth £52.00 $79.50 1-59213-347-9

Also of interest:
If You Tame Me: Understanding Our Connection with Animals
Leslie Irvine
Animals, Culture, and Society Series
240 pp.
Paper £12.95 $19.95 1-59213-241-3

Cat Culture: The Social World of a Cat Shelter
Janet M. Alger and Steven F. Alger
Animals, Culture, and Society Series
256 pp.
Paper £11.95 $17.95 1-56639-998-X

www.temple.edu/tempress
The African American Jeremiad
Appeals for Justice in America

REVISED AND EXPANDED EDITION

David Howard-Pitney

An enduring verbal tradition links African American leaders from Frederick Douglass to Malcolm X to Alan Keyes

Begun by Puritans, the American jeremiad, a rhetoric that expresses indignation and urges social change, has produced passionate and persuasive essays and speeches throughout the nation's history. Showing that black leaders have employed this verbal tradition of protest and social prophecy in a way that is specifically African American, David Howard-Pitney examines the jeremiads of Frederick Douglass, Booker T. Washington, Ida B. Wells, W.E.B. DuBois, Mary McLeod Bethune, Martin Luther King, Jr., and Malcolm X, as well as more contemporary figures such as Jesse Jackson and Alan Keyes. This revised and expanded edition demonstrates that the African American jeremiad is still vibrant, serving as a barometer of faith in America's perfectibility and hope for social justice.

This new edition features:
• A new chapter on Malcolm X
• An updated discussion of Jesse Jackson
• A new discussion of Alan Keyes

Praise for the First Edition:
“...a superb work. Using speeches and writings of these prominent African Americans, and written in a style that is accessible to a wide readership, David Howard-Pitney has created a work that gives great insight into the African American prophetic vision and daring mission to make the nation right.”—Journal of American Ethnic History

“An important and thought-provoking book.”—Church History

DAVID HOWARD-PITNEY
is Professor of History at De Anza College. He has worked at the Martin Luther King, Jr. Papers Project at Stanford University, and during 2000-2002 was a Commissioned Scholar for the Public Influences of African-American Churches Project of Morehouse College. His publications include Martin Luther King, Jr., Malcolm X, and the Civil Rights Struggle of the 1950s and ‘60s.
From Black Power to Hip Hop
Racism, Nationalism, and Feminism

Patricia Hill Collins

A provocative analysis of the new contours of black nationalism and feminism in America

Despite legislation designed to eliminate unfair racial practices, the United States continues to struggle with a race problem. Some thinkers label this a “new” racism and call for new political responses to it. Using the experiences of African American women and men as a touchstone for analysis, Patricia Hill Collins examines new forms of racism as well as political responses to it.

In this incisive and stimulating book, renowned social theorist Patricia Hill Collins investigates how nationalism has operated and re-emerged in the wake of contemporary globalization and offers an interpretation of how black nationalism works today in the wake of changing black youth identity. Hers is the first study to analyze the interplay of racism, nationalism, and feminism in the context of twenty-first century black America.

From Black Power to Hip Hop covers a wide range of topics including the significance of race and ethnicity to the American national identity; how ideas about motherhood affect population policies; African American use of black nationalism ideologies as anti-racist practice; and the relationship between black nationalism, feminism and women in the hip-hop generation.

In the series Politics, History, and Social Change, edited by John C. Torpey

African American Studies/Women’s Studies

FEBRUARY
256 pp.
6 x 9”

Paper £12.95 $19.95 1-59213-092-5
Cloth £38.95 $59.50 1-59213-091-7

www.temple.edu/tempress
The World Next Door
South Asian American Literature and the Idea of America

Rajini Srikanth

Literature that takes us beyond identity to empathy

This book grows out of the question, “At this particular moment of tense geopolitics and inter-linked economies, what insights can South Asian American writing offer us about living in the world?”

South Asian American literature, with its focus on the multiple geographies and histories of the global dispersal of South Asians, pulls back from a close-up view of the United States to reveal a wider landscape of many nations and peoples.

South Asian American poets, novelists, and playwrights depict the nation as simultaneously discrete and entwined with the urgencies of places as diverse as Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, India, Burma, Pakistan, and Trinidad. Drawing on the cosmopolitan sensibility of scholars like Anthony Appiah, Vinay Dharwadker, Martha Nussbaum, Bruce Robbins, and Amartya Sen, this book exhorts North American residents to envision connectedness with inhabitants of other lands. The world out there arrives next door.

“The introduction to this book is stunning: it brings the reader up to date with the tension that currently underlies the South Asian diaspora in the US.… In chapter after chapter, [Srikanth] shows how literature and activism strengthen each other…. Essential.”—CHOICE

In the series Asian American History and Culture, edited by Sucheng Chan
David Palumbo-Liu, and Michael Omi and K. Scott Wong

RAJINI SRIKANTH
is Associate Professor of English at the University of Massachusetts, Boston.
She is the coeditor (with Sunaina Maira) of Contours of the Heart: South Asians Map North America and (with Lavina Dhingra Shankar) of A Part Yet Apart: South Asians in Asian America (Temple).
Global perceptions of China have changed dramatically since the massive student protests that took place in Tian’anmen Square in April 1989. The media spotlight trained on Beijing, and the international uproar over the events of that spring still shape the world's perceptions of the People’s Republic and the ways that Chinese people, within and beyond China, see and portray themselves.

In From Tian’anmen to Times Square, leading film scholar Gina Marchetti considers the complex changes in the ways that China and the Chinese have been portrayed in cinema and media arts since the Tian’anmen revolt. Drawing on her interviews with leading contemporary Chinese filmmakers, Marchetti looks at a wide range of work by Chinese and non-Chinese media artists working in China, Hong Kong, Taiwan, and Singapore and on transnational co-productions involving those places. Focusing on the intersections of race, ethnicity, gender, and sexuality on global screens, Marchetti traces the momentous political, cultural, social, and economic forces confronting contemporary media artists and filmmakers working within “Greater China.”

“Marchetti offers a sophisticated analysis of the thoroughgoing transformation of contemporary “Greater China” as mediated by an integrated international cinema system held in a curious interplay between state-controlled and “free-market” institutions. Particularly noteworthy is the equal weight Marchetti places upon both internal migration within China (at a level unprecedented in human history) and overseas immigration, with particular emphasis on Canada and the U.S.” —Darrell Y. Hamamoto, University of California, Davis
Welfare Discipline
Discourse, Governance, and Globalization

Sanford F. Schram

Rethinking the American understanding of poverty, welfare, and the language used to describe them

For the past decade, political scientist Sanford Schram has led the academic effort to understand how Americans and their political officials talk about poverty and welfare and what impact that discourse has on policy and on the global society.

In Welfare Discipline, Schram argues that it is time to take stock of the new forms of welfare and to develop even better methods to understand them. He argues for a more contextualized approach to examining welfare policy, from the use of the idea of globalization to justify cutbacks, to the increasing employment of U.S. policy discourse overseas, to the development of asset-based approaches to helping the poor.

Stressing the importance of understanding the ways we talk about welfare, how we study it, and, critically, what we do not discuss and why, Schram offers recommendations for making welfare policy both just and effective.

“There are few, if any, better guides to the tortuous politics of welfare reform than Sanford Schram. His path-breaking contributions bear comparison to those of Piven and Cloward. I can think of no higher recommendation.”—Jamie Peck, University of Wisconsin-Madison is Visiting Professor and the Director of the Center on Ethnicities, Communities, and Social Policy at Bryn Mawr College. He is the author of three books, including Words of Welfare: The Poverty of Social Science and the Social Science of Poverty, which won the American Political Science Association’s Michael Harrington Award.

SANFORD F. SCHRAM
At St. John’s Bread and Life, a soup kitchen in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn, more than a thousand people line up for breakfast and lunch five days a week. During the twelve-year era of welfare reform, William DiFazio observed the daily lives of poor people at St. John’s and throughout New York City.

In this trenchant and groundbreaking work, DiFazio presents the results of welfare reform—from ending entitlements to diminished welfare benefits—through the eyes and voices of those who were most directly affected by it. Ordinary Poverty concludes with a program to guarantee universal rights to a living wage as a crucial way to end poverty. Ultimately, DiFazio articulates the form a true poor people’s movement would take—one that would link the interests of all social movements with the interests of ending poverty.

“The heart and soul of Ordinary Poverty is the ethnography of St. John’s Bread and Life soup kitchen. The greatest strength of the book, however, is the way in which DiFazio’s text moves seamlessly from ethnography to high social theory and back again, in chapter after chapter of poignant prose and provocative analysis.”

—Jonathan Cutler, Wesleyan University

In the series Labor in Crisis, edited by Stanley Aronowitz
A Right to Housing
Foundation for a New Social Agenda

Edited by Rachel G. Bratt, Michael E. Stone, and Chester Hartman

An examination of America’s housing crisis by the leading progressive housing activists in the country

In the 1949 Housing Act, Congress declared “a decent home and a suitable living environment for every American family” our national housing goal. Today, little more than half a century later, upwards of 100 million people in the United States live in housing that is physically inadequate, unsafe, overcrowded, or unaffordable.

The contributors to A Right to Housing consider the key issues related to America's housing crisis, including income inequality and insecurity, segregation and discrimination, the rights of the elderly, as well as legislative and judicial responses to homelessness. The book offers a detailed examination of how access to adequate housing is directly related to economic security.

With essays by leading activists and scholars, this book presents a powerful and compelling analysis of the persistent inability of the U.S. to meet many of its citizens’ housing needs, and a comprehensive proposal for progressive change.

Contributors include: Emily Paradise Achtenberg, Boston, Consultant; David B. Bryson, National Housing Law Project; John Emmeus Davis, Burlington, Vermont, Consultant; Nancy A. Denton, SUNY Albany; Peter Dreier, Occidental College; Maria Foscarinis, National Law Center for Homelessness and Poverty; Dennis Keating, Cleveland State University; Peter Marcuse, Columbia University; Jon Pynoos and Helene Clark, University of Southern California; Rob Rosenthal, Wesleyan University; Susan Saegert and Helene Clark, City University of New York; Michael Swack, Southern New Hampshire University; Chris Tilly, University of Massachusetts, Lowell; Robert Wiener, California Coalition for Rural Housing Project; Larry Lamar Yates, Social Justice Connections; and the editors.

RACHEL G. BRATT
is Professor and Chair of the Department of Urban and Environmental Policy and Planning at Tufts University. She is the author of Rebuilding a Low-Income Housing Policy and a co-editor of Critical Perspectives on Housing, both published by Temple.

MICHAEL E. STONE
is Professor of Community Planning and Public Policy at the University of Massachusetts Boston. His publications include Shelter Poverty: New Ideas on Housing Affordability (Temple).

CHESTER HARTMAN
is Director of Research at the Poverty & Race Research Action Council in Washington, DC and Adjunct Professor of Sociology at George Washington University. His most recent books are City for Sale: The Transformation of San Francisco, and Between Eminence & Notoriety: Four Decades of Radical Urban Planning.
Disorders of Desire
Sexuality and Gender in Modern American Sexology
REVISED AND EXPANDED EDITION
Janice M. Irvine

How our notions about sexual behavior and sexuality have been influenced by sexology, from its roots in nineteenth century Europe to Kinsey's research to the current Viagra Revolution

Disorders of Desire is the only book to tell the story of the development and impact of sexology—the scientific study of sex—in the United States. In this era of sex scandals, culture wars, "Sex in the City," and new sexual enhancement technologies (like erectile dysfunction drugs), its critique of sexology is even more relevant than it was when the book was first published in 1990.

This revised and expanded edition features new chapters addressing:

• The diagnosis of “sex addiction” in the 1970s and its social and political implications.

• New developments within the field of sexology, including the “Viagra Revolution” that began in the 1990s.

• The pharmaceutical industry’s role in the development of sexual enhancements and the search for the female equivalent of Viagra.

Praise for the First Edition:

“Disorders of Desire…has important lessons for historians generally. In its meticulous documentation of the in-fighting between different schools of thought within the overall (and much beleaguered by external opponents) field of sexology within a fairly narrow time frame, it reminds us that we may similarly be lumping together very diverse interests and agendas under such headings as ‘social purity,’ ‘sex reform,’ ‘eugenics,’ or ‘the birth control movement.’ …This is an excellent, readable, thought-provoking study.”—Lesley A. Hall, The Society for the Social History of Medicine

“A comprehensive, nuanced investigation…She shares Michel Foucault’s interest in tracing the genealogy of our cultural discourses on sex and gender and the assumptions of power hidden within them, but while Foucault paints in broad brush strokes, traversing centuries and cultures, Irvine’s study is much more manageable, and, as a result, more convincing.”—Arlene J. Stein, American Journal of Sociology is Professor of Sociology at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst. She is the author of Talk About Sex: The Battles over Sex Education in the United States, and the editor of Sexual Cultures and the Construction of Adolescent Sexualities (Temple). In 2005, she received the Simon and Gagnon Award from the Sexualities Section of the American Sociological Association.

JANICE M. IRVINE

www.temple.edu/tempress
Of Others Inside
Insanity, Addiction, and Belonging in America

Darin Weinberg
Foreword by Brian S. Turner

An original, comparative look at homelessness, mental disease, and addiction in America

There is little doubt among scientists and the general public that homelessness, mental illness, and addiction are inter-related. In Of Others Inside, Darin Weinberg examines the way insanity has become synonymous with these afflictions. He links this phenomenon to the transformation of addiction treatment from a redemptive process to a punitive one, and explores the connection between addiction rehabilitation centers and the criminal justice system.

Seeking to offer a new sociological understanding of the relationship between social exclusion and mental disability, Of Others Inside considers the general social condition of the homeless population in the U.S. Weinberg also explores questions about American perceptions of poverty, and examines in great detail the social causes of mental disability and drug addiction without reducing people's suffering to simple notions of biological fate or social disorder.

"Of Others Inside is brilliant and fascinating. The author has done a commendable job charting a middle ground between the equally unsatisfying positions that mental illness and addictions are things-in-themselves or arbitrary social constructions."—Spencer Cahill, University of South Florida

Sociology/Health Policy

OCTOBER 256 pp.
6 x 9"

Paper £14.95 $22.95 1-59213-404-1
Cloth £42.00 $64.50 1-59213-403-3

DARIN WEINBERG

teaches in the Department of Sociology at Cambridge University and is a Fellow of King's College, Cambridge.
Medicalized Masculinities

Edited by Dana Rosenfeld and Christopher A. Faircloth

The first book to examine the male body in relation to the sociology of health and gender

When medicalization—the characterization of human traits in terms of disease and ailment—first appeared as a concept in the 1970s, most social science gender scholarship focused on female or genderless bodies. The work on men, health, and medicine was scant and tended to depict masculinity as intrinsically damaging to men’s health.

Medicalized Masculinities considers how these threads in scholarship failed to consider the male body adequately and presents cutting-edge research into the definition and regulation of masculinity by medicine. Renowned health and gender studies experts examine medicalized conditions such as balding, aging, and other dimensions of the life cycle in the tradition of the sociology of health and gender.

Table of Contents

Introduction: Medicalized Masculinities: The Missing Link? Dana Rosenfeld and Christopher A. Faircloth

1) The Viagra Blues: Embracing or Resisting the Viagra Body, Meika Loe, Colgate University

2) Sex the Natural Way: The Marketing of Cialis and Levitra, Chris Wienke, Arkansas State University

3) The Leaky Male Body: Forensics and the Construction of the Sexual Suspect, Lisa Jean Moore and Heidi Durkin, The College of Staten Island

4) Medicalizing the Aging Male Body: Andropause and Baldness, Julia E. Szymczak, Children’s Hospital Boston and Peter Conrad, Brandeis University

5) Dissecting Medicine: Gender Biases in the Discourses and Practices of Medical Anatomy, Alan Petersen, University of Plymouth, UK and Sam Regan De Bere, University of Exeter, UK

6) Making the Grade: The Gender Gap, ADHD, and the Medicalization of Boyhood, Nicky Hart with Noah Grand and Kevin Riley, University of California, Los Angeles

7) The Sexual Savage: Race Science and the Medicalization of Black Masculinity, Ann Marie Hickey, University of Kansas

8) Medicalizing Military Masculinity: Reconstructing the War Veteran in PTSD Therapy, Marisa Smith, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Seattle is an Assistant Professor of Sociology at Colorado College and the author of The Changing of the Guard: Lesbian and Gay Elders, Identity and Social Change (Temple).

DANA ROSENFELD

CHRISTOPHER FAIRCLOTH

is a Research Health Scientist at the North Florida-South Georgia VA Medical Center and Assistant Professor of Occupational Therapy at the University of Florida. He is the editor of the forthcoming Aging Bodies: Images and Everyday Experience.
The Eagles Encyclopedia

Ray Didinger and Robert S. Lyons

The first comprehensive history of the Philadelphia Eagles

In the City of Brotherly Love, no team tugs at the hearts and weighs on the minds of fans more than the Philadelphia Eagles. But, much more than a local obsession, the Eagles are also one of football’s most storied franchises.

Amply illustrated with 200 photos of the players, coaches, fans, and the stadiums in which the team has played, The Eagles Encyclopedia recounts the greatest moments in the team’s history, and brings to life the men who helped create modern football.

Fans will read about:
- Bert Bell’s 1933 purchase of the Frankford Yellow Jackets, the city’s first NFL franchise
- The Philadelphia - Pittsburgh “Steagles” during WWII, which produced the team’s first winning season
• The 1960 NFL title victory over the Packers and the 1980 Super Bowl game
• The sterling careers of Hall of Famers like Chuck Bednarik and Steve van Buren
• The Duffel Bag Dynasty of 1947-1949, when the Eagles went to three consecutive NFL championships, including back-to-back championships
• The thrilling 21st century, which has so far seen four consecutive NFC championship games and a second Super Bowl bid!

But wait, there's more! The Eagles Encyclopedia also includes:

• A year by year history of the team—from 1933 to the present, with stats from each season
• Individual profiles of more than 100 Eagles players—from Swede Hanson to Donovan McNabb
• A statistical chapter that provides all the Eagles records—a complete roster, and every draft pick

Written by Pro Football Hall of Fame writer Ray Didinger and local sports historian Robert S. Lyons, The Eagles Encyclopedia is the first comprehensive chronicle of the team’s history and an indispensable guide for every Eagles fan.

(top left) Team owner Jeffrey Lurie accepting the George Halas trophy from Terry Bradshaw after the Eagles defeat the Atlanta Falcons in the 2004 NFC Championship game.
(bottom left) Eagles fans from the final game played at Veterans Stadium. (this page) Eagles fans at the new home of the Eagles, Lincoln Financial Field. Photos by Joseph V. Labolito

RAY DIDINGER
has won four Emmy Awards as a writer and producer at NFL Films. Before that, he was a reporter covering the National Football League for The Philadelphia Bulletin, and later The Philadelphia Daily News. In 1995 he was enshrined in the Pro Football Hall of Fame as the recipient of the Dick McCann Memorial Award for long and distinguished reporting of pro football. He is also a weekly commentator and panelist on Comcast’s Post Game Live show during the football season.

For more than thirty years, ROBERT S. LYONS has covered professional and college sports for the Associated Press, and has contributed to numerous national publications. The former director of the La Salle University News Bureau, editor of the university’s alumni magazine, and an instructor of journalism at La Salle, he is now president of RSL Communications. He is the author of Palestra Pandemonium: A History of the Big 5 (Temple).

Sports/Regional Interest

SEPTEMBER 320 pp.
200 illus.
8 1/2 x 11”
Cloth £25.95 $35.00 T 1-59213-449-1

www.temple.edu/tempress
Veterans Stadium
Field of Memories

Rich Westcott
Foreword by Darren Daulton

A loving tribute to the home of some of Philadelphia’s greatest sporting and cultural events

Veterans Stadium was the outdoor sports and concert capital of Philadelphia from 1971 until its televised demolition in 2004. At its best, “The Vet” spawned two of the greatest moments in the city’s sports history—Tug McGraw’s 1980 strikeout of Willie Wilson to win the World Series and the Eagles thrashing of the Dallas Cowboys to clinch their first Super Bowl bid. At its worst, it saw fans pelt Santa Claus with snowballs and the opening of an in-stadium branch of Philadelphia municipal court to deal with rowdy Eagles fans.

Part of a look-alike generation of all-purpose stadiums erected around the country, the Vet took on its own personality over the years. For all its deficiencies, it left fans loving it in the way they loved their own families—warts and all. Almost 100 photographs and Rich Westcott’s yarns make Veterans Stadium the one book that will help Philadelphians—and Philadelphia visitors—remember thirty years of their history.

With the Navy Yard, JFK Stadium, and the Spectrum looming in the background, Veterans Stadium began to take shape.

Photo courtesy of the Philadelphia Phillies.

Sports/Regional Interest

OCTOBER 200 pp.
90 b/w illus.
7x10”
Cloth £18.95 $24.95 1-59213-428-9

Also of interest:
See sports books on page 29

RICH WESTCOTT

is a baseball writer, a historian and a veteran of more than 40 years as a working journalist. He is a leading authority on the Phillies, and for 14 years was editor and publisher of Phillies Report. He is the author of 17 books, including Philadelphia’s Old Ballparks and The Phillies Encyclopedia, 3rd Edition (with Frank Bilovsky) both published by Temple.
In the latter part of the nineteenth century, the citizens of Great Britain faced a formidable challenge: coal resources seemed destined to run out and commentators were unable to foresee a viable alternative fuel. To address the crisis, military strategists were urged to seize control of coal in foreign lands, and companies were encouraged to increase domestic production of the resource.

In Global Energy Shifts, Bruce Podobnik draws intriguing parallels between the “coal panics” that once swept through Britain and the “oil panics” that grip the world today. His concise history of global energy use contextualizes the coal and oil scares, demonstrating how the convergence of specific geopolitical, commercial, and social conditions can generate rapid and far-reaching transformations in the energy foundations of our world.

Ultimately, Podobnik informs readers on how a “crisis” of one fuel system is quickly averted with the introduction of another, and describes opportunities for shifting our problematic, oil-based system toward a renewable energy system.

“Global Energy Shifts is a significant contribution, and one made all the more forceful by the innovative use of diverse data sources.” —Gavin Bridge, Syracuse University
The Disenfranchisement of Ex-Felons

Elizabeth A. Hull

A thought-provoking look at one population’s loss of voting rights in the United States

In the 2004 presidential election, 4,686,539 Americans—a population greater than the city of Los Angeles—were barred from the polls. In a country that has extended suffrage to virtually every other class of citizen, ex-felons are the sole segment of our population deemed unworthy to exercise what the Supreme Court has called “the right preservative of all other rights,” the right to vote.

The Disenfranchisement of Ex-Felons provides a comprehensive overview of the history, nature, and far-reaching sociological and political consequences of denying ex-felons the right to vote. Readers learn state practices in Florida and Ohio during the 2000 and 2004 presidential elections; arguments that have been used in court houses, legislatures, and the press to justify such practices; and attempts to reverse legislation through state and federal governments. In a timely appendix to the 2004 election, Elizabeth Hull makes her case that the battle for civil rights will not be won unless ex-felons, who have fulfilled their obligations to society, are restored the same rights afforded all other American citizens.

“Elizabeth Hull brings together reports from a wide variety of scholarly disciplines. The Disenfranchisement of Ex-Felons includes material from public law, political philosophy, history, sociology, legislative politics, and electoral analysis; its spatial perspectives include the states, the nation, foreign countries, and the international community. This comprehensive combination of diverse literatures and perspectives make this book the basic guide to contemporary scholarship on this subject of emerging policy significance.”

—Gerald Pomper, Eagleton Institute of Politics

Criminology/Law/Political Science

FEBRUARY 232 pp.
3 tables
5 1/2 x 8 1/4"

Paper $12.95 $19.95 1-59213-185-9
Cloth £38.95 $59.50 1-59213-184-0
Courts, Liberalism, and Rights
Gay Law and Politics in the United States and Canada
Jason Pierceson

Understanding approaches to liberalism through the study of the politics of gay and lesbian rights

In the courts, the best chance for achieving a broad set of rights for gays and lesbians lies with judges who view liberalism as grounded in an expansion of rights rather than a constraint of government activity.

At a time when most gay and lesbian politics focuses only on the issue of gay marriage, Courts, Liberalism, and Rights guides readers through a nuanced discussion of liberalism, court rulings on sodomy laws and same-sex marriage, and the comparative progress gays and lesbians have made via the courts in Canada.

As debates continue about the ability of courts to affect social change, Jason Pierceson argues that this is possible. He claims that the greatest opportunity for reform via the judiciary exists when a judiciary with broad interpretive powers encounters a political culture that endorses a form of liberalism based on broadly conceived individual rights; not a negative set of rights to be held against the state, but a set of rights that recognizes the inherent dignity and worth of every individual.

“This is an excellent analysis of many of the legal issues dealing with sodomy and same-sex marriages and helps to explain why they have developed in the way that they have. The material is theoretically rich and grounded in diverse literature.”
—Richard Pacelle, Georgia Southern University

In the series Queer Politics, Queer Theories, edited by Craig Rimmerman
Positively No Filipinos Allowed
Building Communities and Discourse

Edited by Antonio T. Tiongson, Jr., Edgardo V. Gutierrez, and Ricardo V. Gutierrez

Foreword by Lisa Lowe

Essays challenging conventional narratives of Filipino American history and culture

From the perspectives of ethnic studies, history, literary criticism, and legal studies, the original essays in this volume examine the ways in which the colonial history of the Philippines has shaped Filipino American identity, culture, and community formation. The contributors address the dearth of scholarship in the field as well as show how an understanding of this complex history provides a foundation for new theoretical frameworks for Filipino American studies.

Table of Contents
Introduction: Critical Considerations, Antonio T. Tiongson, Jr.

PART I: Imperial Legacies and Filipino Subjectivities
1) 1896-1996: Patterns of Reform, Repetition, and Return in the First Centennial of the Philippine Revolution, Jody Blanco, University of California, San Diego
2) On Filipinos, Filipino Americans, and United States Imperialism Interview with Oscar V. Campomanes
3) Filipino Bodies, Lynching, and the Language of Empire, Nerissa S. Balce, University of Massachusetts-Amherst
4) “Just Ten Years Removed from a Bolo and a Breech Cloth”: The Sexualization of the Filipino “Menace”, Ruby Tapia, Ohio State University

PART II: Public Policy, Law, and the Construction of Filipinos
5) Losing Little Manila: Race and Redevelopment in Filipina/o Stockton, California, Dawn Bohulano Mabalon, San Francisco State University
6) Filipino Americans, Foreigner Discrimination, and the Lines of Racial Sovereignty, Angelo Ancheta, Harvard University

PART III: Reconfiguring the Scope of Filipino Politics
7) On the Politics of (Filipino) Youth Culture Interview with Theodore S. Gonzalves
8) Colonial Amnesia: Rethinking Filipino “American” Settler Empowerment in the U.S. Colony of Hawaii, Dean Itsuji Saranillio, University of Michigan

PART IV: Resignifying “Filipino American”
9) “A Million Deaths?”: Genocide and the “Filipino American” Condition of Possibility, Dylan Rodríguez, University of California, Riverside
10) Reflections on the Trajectory of Filipino American Studies Interview with Rick Bonus
11) Do You Mis(recognize) Me: Jocelyn Enriquez, Filipina/o Invisibility, and the Condition of Perpetual Absence, Elizabeth H. Pisares
12) A Different Breed of Filipino Balikbayans: The Ambiguities of “Returning”, S. Lily Mendoza, University of Denver

In the series Asian American History and Culture, edited by Sucheng Chan, David Palumbo-Liu, Michael Omi, and K. Scott Wong

ANTONIO T. TIONGSON, JR.

is a doctoral candidate in Ethnic Studies at the University of California, San Diego. His research focuses on Filipino youth cultural politics.

EDGARDO V. GUTIERREZ

is an engineer who earned his B.S. from Cal Poly San Luis Obispo and actively maintains his independent studies in Ethnic Studies.

RICARDO V. GUTIERREZ

is a Strategic Consulting and Investment Management Industry Professional who earned his B.S. from San Francisco State University.
Chinese American Transnationalism
The Flow of People, Resources, and Ideas between China and America during the Exclusion Era

Edited by Sucheng Chan

The third volume in a trilogy that offers the most comprehensive account to date of the Chinese American experience during the exclusion era

Chinese American Transnationalism considers the many ways in which Chinese living in the United States during the exclusion era maintained ties with China through a constant interchange of people and economic resources, as well as political and cultural ideas. This book continues the exploration of the exclusion era begun in two previous volumes: Entry Denied, which examines the strategies that Chinese Americans used to protest, undermine, and circumvent the exclusion laws; and Claiming America, which traces the development of Chinese American ethnic identities. Taken together, the three volumes underscore the complexities of the Chinese immigrant experience and the ways in which its contexts changed over the sixty-one year period.

Table of Contents

1) Defying Exclusion: Chinese Immigrants and Their Strategies During the Exclusion Era, Erika Lee, University of Minnesota
2) Trading with the Gold Mountain: Jinshanzhuang and Networks of Kinship and Native Place, Madeline Hsu, San Francisco State University
3) Against All Odds: Chinese Female Migration and Family Formation in America During the Early Twentieth Century, Sucheng Chan, University of California, Santa Barbara
4) Chinese Herbalists in the United States, Haiming Liu, California State Polytechnic University, Pomona
5) Understanding Chinese American Transnationalism During the Early Twentieth Century: An Economic Perspective, Yong Chen, University of California, Irvine
6) Republicanism, Confucianism, Christianity, and Capitalism in Chinese American Ideology, Shenhong Chen, University of Massachusetts, Lowell
7) Teaching Chinese Americans to be Chinese: Curriculum, Teachers, and Textbooks in Chinese Schools in America During the Exclusion Era, Him Mark Lai, Chinese Historical Society of America
8) Writing a Place in American Life: The Sensibilities of American-born Chinese as Reflected in Life Stories from the Exclusion Era, Xiao-Huang Yin, Occidental College

In the series Asian American History and Culture, edited by Sucheng Chan, David Palumbo-Liu, Michael Omi, and K. Scott Wong

SUCHENG CHAN
is Professor Emerita of Asian American Studies and Global Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara, and founding editor of the Asian American History and Culture series. She is the author of or editor of numerous books, including three with Temple: Entry Denied, Claiming America, and Hmong Means Free.

Asian American Studies/History/American Studies

DECEMBER 296 pp.
38 tables
6 x 9"

Paper £14.95 $22.95 1-59213-435-1
Cloth £45.00 $69.50 1-59213-434-3

Also of interest:
Claiming America: Constructing Chinese American Identities During the Exclusion Era
Edited by K. Scott Wong and Sucheng Chan
226 pp.
Paper £14.95 $22.95 1-56639-435-1

Hmong Means Free: Life in Laos and America
Sucheng Chan
296 pp.
Paper £14.95 $22.95 1-56639-163-6

www.temple.edu/tempress
Literary Gestures
The Aesthetic in Asian American Writing
Edited by Rocío G. Davis and Sue-Im Lee

Form as function in Asian American literature

Literary Gestures: The Aesthetic in Asian American Writing contests the dominance of materialist and cultural critiques in Asian American literary discourse by re-centering critical attention around issues of aesthetics and literary form. Collapsing the perceived divisions between the "ethnic" and the "aesthetic" in Asian American literary criticism, the eleven original essays in this volume provide theoretically sophisticated and formally sensitive readings of works in prose, poetry, and drama. These contributions bring discussions of genre, canonicity, narrative, and literary value to the fore to show how aesthetic and formal concerns play an important part in the production and consumption of these works. By calling for a more balanced mode of criticism, this collection invites students and scholars to reinvest in the literary, not as a negation of the sociopolitical, but as a complementary strategy in reading and understanding Asian American literature.

Contributors include: Mita Banerjee, University of Mainz, Germany; Mark Chiang, University of Illinois-Chicago; Patricia P. Chu, George Washington University; Iyko Day, University of California-Berkeley; Donatella Izzo, Universita degli Studi di Napoli “L’Orientale,” Italy; Kimberly M. Jew, Washington & Lee University; Christina Mar, University of California-Riverside; Josephine Nock-Hee Park, University of Pennsylvania; Gita Rajan, Fairfield University; Celestine Woo, Fort Lewis College; and the editors.

"The editors and authors have done an excellent job of offering essays that are individually and collectively on point, consistently illuminating, and thoroughly enjoyable—the volume, with respect to this last point, reflects the pleasures and power of aesthetic investigation of which it speaks.” — Kandice Chuh, University of Maryland, College Park

ROCIÓ G. DAVIS
is Associate Professor of American and Postcolonial Literatures at the University of Navarre and author of Transcultural Reinventions: Asian American and Asian Canadian Short-Story Cycles.

SUE-IM LEE
is Assistant Professor of English at Temple University.

ROCIÓ G. DAVIS
is Associate Professor of American and Postcolonial Literatures at the University of Navarre and author of Transcultural Reinventions: Asian American and Asian Canadian Short-Story Cycles.

SUE-IM LEE
is Assistant Professor of English at Temple University.
Transnational Asian American Literature: Sites and Transits

Edited by Shirley Geok-lin Lim, John Blair Gamber, Stephen Hong Sohn, and Gina Valentino

Exploring the transnational dynamics of Asian American literature

Transnational Asian American Literature: Sites and Transits examines the diasporic and transnational aspects of Asian American literature and asserts the importance of a globalized imaginary in what has been considered an ethnic subgenre of American literature. The thirteen essays in this volume engage works of prose and poetry as aesthetic articulations of the fluid transnational identities formed by Asian American writers who move within and across national boundaries.

With its emphasis on the transmigratory and flexible nature of Asian American literary production, the collection argues for an equally balanced mode of criticism that extends our readings of these works beyond the traditional limits of the American literary canon. Individual chapters feature such writers as Chang-rae Lee, Karen Tei Yamashita, Jhumpa Lahiri, Maxine Hong Kingston, and Ha Jin, with attention to such discourses as gender, space and mobility, transnationalism, identity, genre, and post-coloniality.

SHIRLEY GEOK-LIN LIM
is Professor of English at the University of California, Santa Barbara, author of several works in criticism, poetry, fiction, and a memoir, Among the White Moon Faces: An Asian American Memoir of Homelands, and co-editor of Transnational Asia Pacific: Gender, Culture, and the Public Sphere and Reading the Literatures of Asian America (Temple).

JOHN BLAIR GAMBER is a Doctoral Scholars Fellow at the University of California, Santa Barbara. His research includes investigations of portrayals of pollution in contemporary U.S. minority literature.

STEPHEN HONG SOHN
is a teaching associate in Asian American Studies at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

GINA VALENTINO
is a Graduate Opportunity Fellow in the Department of English at the University of California, Santa Barbara. Her research focuses on contemporary U.S. fiction and drama and working-class trauma in the new economy.

www.temple.edu/tempress
How collective memory of the Holocaust advances human rights in the Global Age

Can collective memories of the past shape the future? If one of the fears about a globalized society is the homogenization of culture, can it nevertheless be true that the homogenization of memory might have a positive impact on political and cultural norms?

Originally published in Germany, The Holocaust and Memory in the Global Age examines the nature of collective memory in a globalized world, and how the memory of one particular event—the Holocaust—helped give rise to an emerging global consensus on human rights.

Daniel Levy and Natan Sznaider show how memories of the Holocaust have been de-contextualized from the original event and offer a framework for interpreting contemporary acts of injustice such as ethnic cleansing and genocide. Representations of mass atrocities in Bosnia and Kosovo during the 1990s resonated with iconographies of the Holocaust and played a significant role in the political and military interventions in the Balkans. Subsequently, these representations have had a crucial impact on the consolidation of international human rights and related issues of transitional justice, reparations, and restitution.

“Levy and Sznaider successfully demonstrate why ‘holocaust’ is no longer an exclusively Jewish or German concern. Their treatment of how the Holocaust is remembered, taught, memorialized, studied, and incorporated into law and policy in each of the three countries [Israel, Germany, and the US] as well as internationally is empirically rich and informative. Their larger argument about the decoupling of collective memory from national boundaries and the emergence of cosmopolitan meanings and concern is ingenious.”—David Abraham, University of Miami School of Law

In the series Politics, History, and Social Change, edited by John C. Torpey
In Labor of Fire, Bruno Gulli offers a timely and much needed re-examination of the concept of labor. Distinguishing between "productive labor" (working for money or subsistence) and "living labor" (working for artistic creation), Gulli convincingly argues for a definition of work that recognizes the importance of artistic and social creativity to our definition of labor and the self.

Gulli lays the groundwork for his book by offering a critique of productive labor, and then maps out his productive/living labor distinction in detail, reviewing the work of Marx and others.

“My sense is that Gulli’s work (along with that of a few other young scholars) will renew once again the Marxist tradition. This will not be a scientific Marxism or a humanist Marxism or a structuralist Marxism. It is rather a very philosophical approach to Marx that is nonetheless centered on the concept of labor and its power of social transformation.” — Michael Hardt, Duke University

In the series Labor in Crisis, edited by Stanley Aronowitz.
Feedback
The Video Data Bank Catalog of Video Art and Artist Interviews

Edited by Kate Horsfield and Lucas Hilderbrand

Historic documentation of the development of art-based, activist, and alternative media in the U.S.

Founded in 1976 at the inception of the media arts movement, the Video Data Bank is the leading resource in the United States for videotapes by and about contemporary artists. The collections include seminal works that, seen as a whole, describe the development of video as an art form originating in the late 1960s and continuing to the present.

The first printed catalog of the Video Data Bank’s complete holdings, Feedback offers readers essays on the history of media arts, the Video Data Bank, video activism, experimental performance art, and the On Art and Artists Collection. It includes 325 frame grabs and stills from some of the collection’s most important pieces and outlines the styles and directions taken by artists throughout the entire history of video art. An indispensable guide and reference for artists, students, teachers, and collectors, Feedback is an essential book for any film and video bookshelf.

“Feedback should be in the library of every media scholar, teacher, and curator who ever addresses late twentieth century media art, performance art, or documentary. I would certainly recommend it to anyone in that position and will be delighted to possess a copy myself.”—Margaret Morse, University of California, Santa Cruz

In the series Wide Angle Books, edited by Erik Barnouw, Ruth Bradley, Scott McDonald, and Patricia Zimmermann

Cinema Studies/American History
MARCH 360 pp.
8 1/2 x 11”
Cloth £38.95 $60.00 1-59213-182-4

KATE HORSFIELD
co-founded the Video Data Bank with Lyn Blumenthal in 1976 at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago. She is currently Executive Director.

LUCAS HILDERBRAND is a Ph.D. candidate in cinema studies at New York University. His writings have appeared in Camera Obscura and Film Quarterly.
Art in Cinema
Documents Toward a History of the Film Society
Scott MacDonald

Fascinating documentation of one of the most important film societies in American history

From 1946 until 1954, the San Francisco-based film society Art in Cinema presented programs of independent film to audiences at the San Francisco Museum of Art and the University of California, Berkeley. Led by filmmaker Frank Stauffacher, Art in Cinema's programs pioneered the promotion of avant-garde cinema in America.

Scott MacDonald's Art in Cinema presents complete programs presented by the legendary society; dozens of previously unavailable letters between Stauffacher, his collaborators, and filmmakers including Maya Deren, Hans Richter, Vincent Minelli, and Man Ray; a reprint of the society's original catalog, which features essays by Henry Miller and others; and a wide range of other remarkable historical documents.

A companion to Cinema 16 (Temple), a documentary history of the first west coast film society, Art in Cinema provides cineastes, students, teachers, and scholars with extensive and fascinating documentation of one of the most important film societies in American history. Together or separately, the books provide an indispensable reference source for the beginning of this country's love affair with independent film.

"Art in Cinema is an extremely important editorial undertaking, completed with all the professionalism and care that we have come to expect from Scott MacDonald's work, for which all scholars with interests in and commitments to American popular culture are extremely grateful." — David E. James, University of Southern California

In the series Wide Angle Books, edited by Erik Barnouw, Scott MacDonald, and Patricia Zimmerman

SCOTT MACDONALD has taught at Utica College, Bard College, and Hamilton College. He is the author of ten previous books, including the acclaimed A Critical Cinema: Interviews with Independent Filmmakers, now in five volumes, and Cinema 16: Documents Toward a History of the Film Society (Temple).

www.temple.edu/tempress