Re: Research and Creative Achievement Awards

Date: August 25, 2009

Temple University is once again pleased to recognize research excellence by bestowing three Research & Creative Achievement Awards to deserving faculty.

Two of the awards are given for major contributions in research and one shall be for creative achievement in writing, performing arts, and other disciplines. One of the research awards is known as the Paul W. Eberman Faculty Research Award. The second is known as the Faculty Research Award and the third award is known as the Faculty Award for Creative Achievement.

Each awardee will be honored at the Faculty Awards Convocation held in April. Each award will carry a $2,500 honorarium and a framed certificate. Criteria for the awards as well as nomination packet information can be found at <http://www.temple.edu/vpfaculty/awards/index.htm>. Final nomination packets should be sent to the Office of the Senior Vice Provost for Faculty Development and Faculty Affairs, 350 Carnell Hall, no later than December 1, 2009.

These awards provide a wonderful opportunity to recognize our faculty for their accomplishments in research and creative achievement. I encourage you to take advantage of this opportunity.
