Introduction of Guests

Mr. Fox introduced the following invited guests:

Dr. George R. Baran, Faculty Senate Steering Committee;
Dr. Robert M. Haythornthwaite, Faculty Senate Steering Committee;
Dr. Karen S. Koziara, Vice President of the Faculty Senate;
Dr. George H. Manaker, Faculty Senate Steering Committee;
Ms. Jennifer R. Adelman, Temple University Student Government;
Mr. John C. Bear, Temple University Student Government;
William L. Rafsky, Honorary Life Trustee;
Marvin Wachman, Honorary Life Trustee.

At this point, Mr. Fox welcomed a group of demonstrators who were present. He informed them that meetings of the Board of Trustees do not provide for participation by persons who are not on the Board or who are not ex officio participants. However, because they represent an important part of the Temple University family, he wanted to recognize them and their concern with the economic events occurring in the University and Harrisburg. He said the Board has deep concerns about Temple University; and whatever it does, it does with a sense of fairness and sensitivity. He said the Board’s every intent is to be fair to those who care, as reflected on the placards of the visitors.

Mr. Fox informed the demonstrators that there have been no final decisions made, and none will be made without consultation with all those who will be impacted by the changes.

Approval of Minutes

On motion duly made and seconded, the Board of Trustees voted to approve the Minutes of the Regular Meeting of December 13, 1994 and the Special Meeting of February 23, 1995 as distributed.

On motion duly made and seconded, and unanimously approved, the Board of Trustees voted to adopt Resolutions of Appreciation for Harry P. Begier, Jr., R. Anderson Pew and Walter E. Williams. The Secretary was instructed to send copies of the Resolutions to the respective recipients, said Resolutions being attached as SUPPLEMENTS I, II and III.
President's Report

The following is the text of President Liacouras' Report to the Board.

President Liacouras’ Report to the Board,
March 14, 1995

My report today centers on budgetary and related matters, and makes three points: (1) comments and recommendations about the February 16 plan to renew Temple's mission; (2) comments and recommendations on the Provost-initiated "faculty voluntary severance pay plan"; and (3) a report by external consultants, the Kearney Company.

I.

My first point incorporates by reference "A Plan to Renew Temple’s Mission," offered on February 16. The challenges offered in that plan and my October 1994 report are real. They must be confronted head-on by the University.

As the Governor's budget recommendations made clear last week: we can expect no help from the State. The recommended appropriation for next year is for no real increase in our appropriation, for the fourth consecutive year. Indeed, when comparing the cumulative CPI with Temple's appropriations for the past seven years (1989-90 through next year's gubernatorial recommendations), the State's annual cumulative shortfall (compared with CPI) to Temple will have climbed to $17,212,000.

While we will work hard in making the case that Temple merits substantial increases in its appropriation, we cannot responsibly plan on them.

There is no external golden goose, no magic wand that will substantially reduce or make Temple's challenges go away.

Nor is there an internal deep pocket at Temple, at the Hospital or elsewhere, that will contribute an ongoing $16 million, or a substantial part of it.

There is no easy solution that avoids reform, and some pain.

Our plan recognizes reality, spreads short-term sacrifices to everyone at Temple, and simultaneously builds a stronger and healthier university. Our goal is to become the best urban-based university in the nation. Our plan is to renew Temple’s mission, becoming more student-centered, and improving educationally and technologically, while protecting the jobs of our colleagues in the future.

We must control our own destiny. Under the Act of 1965 creating Temple’s "state related" status, the Board of Trustees has that responsibility.

With this background, my first recommendation to you is in three parts:

1. For today, you should only provisionally accept our proposed February 16 plan as a working plan. This would be a provisional acceptance, but not final approval. It's a working plan. We would report on April 18 on our progress in achieving agreement on implementing it.

   Your action today will underscore your commitment to a voluntary, cooperative approach with the collective bargaining units and our other colleagues as we address Temple’s challenges.

   I believe Temple people, when they understand the facts and alternatives, will choose short-term sacrifice for the long-term well being of their University, and they will make the right choices.

2. Next, depending on the actual and expected progress by April 18, the February 16 plan or an alternative plan should be submitted to you by May 9. That plan must reduce the current (1994-95) net spending base by $16 million as a prelude to next year’s tentative (1995-96) budget.

   We understand that an alternative plan would almost certainly result in real, uneven and currently unpredictable pain, including major involuntary layoffs for loyal Temple employees. We have avoided such policies for more than a decade, and our proposal of February 16 substantially avoids them.

3. Sometime between May 9 and June 29, the Board would then officially and finally adopt a plan.

Whatever plan is finally approved by the Board, it should be one that can reasonably accomplish the educational and institutional goals described in our February 16 plan. Those goals are dependent, as you will recall, on an additional $14 million in cuts and reallocations during the second and third years of the plan -- for a grand total of $30 million in adjustments (8% of the pertinent budgets).

I repeat: today's recommended Board action will not unilaterally change anything -- contracts, offers, etc. It's only a message that, provisionally, you commend the February 16 plan to the University community for discussion and negotiation.

II.

My second point in this report is a recommendation that, in the spirit of cooperation, you again extend the deadline to April 17 for the Provost-initiated "faculty voluntary severance pay plan."

Along these lines, may I add that if "A Plan to Renew Temple's Mission" is substantially implemented, and if enrollments increase during the next three years as outlined in the plan, then the gross reduction in the size of the full-time faculty resulting from implementing the "voluntary severance pay plan" will not form the basis for an overall faculty reduction. The Provost would determine, as presently, the number and distribution of faculty replacements.

If, on the other hand, we do not achieve agreement on our present plan as well as its goals and financial objectives, then we can responsibly make no such commitments.

The two proposals ("A Plan to Renew Temple's Mission," and the "Faculty Voluntary Severance Pay Plan," respectfully) were designed independently.

The potential faculty-student ratios resulting from the number of faculty who accept the "voluntary severance pay package" were not taken into account by "A Plan to Renew Temple's Mission." But they responsibly cannot be viewed in isolation from the overall challenge confronting the Board.

III.
My third, and final point is a request:

With your permission, I will ask John Phillips, of the Kearney Company, to share with you the scope of Kearney's undertakings, the mood of the university community in understanding the challenges confronting the University, the prospects for administrative and academic savings through restructuring, and the process Kearney is following en route to collecting data, opinions and in making their recommendations.

The Kearney reports will be made directly to the President who, with the advice of the senior officers, will decide on the scope and timing in sharing these recommendations. As you know, my history is to share data very widely, but there may be good reasons to limit some of Kearney's.

I am sharing with the larger University community the first report, which I received last night.

John Phillips will now make a report to you.

The President referred to the A.T. Kearney, Inc. Work Plan dated March 14, 1995, that was distributed to those present and is attached as SUPPLEMENT IV to the official Minutes on file in the Office of the Secretary. He said that whatever recommendations come from A.T. Kearney, Inc., who have been very helpful to UCLA, Tulane and the University of Houston, will not necessarily be implemented. We will determine, as a University, which of the recommendations to accept and which not to accept. The responsibility will stay with the University.

President Liacouras asked John Phillips, Managing Director of Education Practice at A.T. Kearney, Inc., to address the Board.

Mr. Phillips reported on the procedures that Kearney will follow in assisting Temple University to resolve budget difficulties without cutting into the academic core of the institution. Kearney's plan is to reduce costs and to review the need for organizational improvements beyond the need for just a balanced budget. They hope, through a series of cost reductions and improvements in administrative productivity, to resolve the short-term deficit and set in place an equation which will allow Temple to continue to be deficit free.

Mr. Phillips said that service levels to students need to be increased.

In its process, A.T. Kearney is interviewing students, administration and faculty. They meet with the Faculty Senate and Faculty Senate Steering Committee on a regular basis.

They are evaluating something on the order of 500 alternatives that might have some significant cost reductions, 70 of which seem to have significant value for Temple’s purposes.
They are now examining those 70 in detail. They are conducting a student survey to get ideas about students’ attitudes about services; and they are also doing a benchmark study comparing administrative cost rates against those of eleven comparable urban institutions.

Their first effort will be to find savings in administration and overhead. The second effort will be to find savings in campus operations. The third is to find revenue enhancements, and the fourth is to look at academic programs.

The final report will be an array of cost-cutting, revenue-enhancement and productivity-improvement steps available to the University.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

There was no Unfinished Business to bring before the Board.

NEW BUSINESS

23. Authorization to Open Bank Accounts

Because this item came before him in the last four days, President Liacouras asked Mr. Lawrence Connolly, Associate Vice President for Financial Operations, to provide the Board with a full explanation of why these accounts should be opened.

Mr. Connolly said that currently our federal and private loan programs are serviced by an outside organization, Eduserv Technologies, Inc., which uses Wacovia Bank. To achieve savings and better services, AFSA Data Corporation was selected to handle our loan programs; and they asked that we use their depository bank, Firstar Bank of Milwaukee. Board action is required to authorize accounts at Firstar Bank of Milwaukee.

Mr. George Moore, University Counsel and University Secretary, explained that the contract is an administrative one, but Board approval is needed to open the bank accounts.
Mr. Dandridge asked why the Board has not been asked to approve the contract, and the reasons for the change in services.

Mr. Fox said that we have an administrative contract that has appropriately been done without Board approval. In accordance with that contract, we have to open an account for depository funds with the bank used by the company with which we have contracted. This action will give Board approval to the opening of a bank account.

Mr. Fox asked Mr. Moore to provide a written report to the Board about the underlying subject matter, so that they will be informed.

On motion duly made and seconded, the Board of Trustees, with one opposed, voted to authorize the officers to open accounts as needed at Firstar Bank of Milwaukee for the purpose of depositing funds collected by AFSA Data Corporation for the University’s private and federally funded student loan programs.

ADJOURNMENT

On motion duly made and seconded, the Public Session of this meeting of the Board of Trustees adjourned to Executive Session at 3:50 P.M.
