Approval of Minutes

On motion duly made and seconded, the Minutes of May 12, 1998, were approved as distributed.
A year ago, the Board adopted Strategic Initiatives with a three year "timeline" of actions aimed at repositioning Temple University to become an outstanding institution in a radically changing current and future environment for higher education in the region, nation and world.

I can report today that the University Community has responded remarkably well to this challenge, and we're on schedule to complete this transition by July 1, 2000.

The Six Strategic Initiatives ("SI"), you will recall, are:

SI #1: Repositioning Temple as a Regional University

SI #2: Reinvigorating and Transforming Temple's Flagship Main Campus into a Residential Community of Scholars -- "Temple Town"

SI #3: Preserving Temple's Academic Excellence as a Public Research University with Outstanding Graduate and Professional Education; or, as some prefer, Preserving Temple's Status as a Carnegie I University

SI #4: Undergraduate Admissions

SI #5: Responding to Students with Simplified Systems and Responsive People

SI #6: "The Plan to Renew Temple's Mission" and Increased Productivity; Financial Stability and Restraint; Tuition Policies and the State's Annual Appropriation; Fund-Raising.

At the next meeting of the Board (on October 13), I will present a comprehensive report on Strategic Initiatives. Today's report will be briefer, selective and focused primarily on today's agenda. For those keeping score, 28 of 30 specific initiatives identified for 1997 (see SI, pages 12-13) were achieved, and we're on course for 1998 and 1999.

I.

Four "industries" are driving our economic future. They are: Tourism, Technology, Health Care, and the Global Economy. They're not fads. They are long-term growth areas with jobs for the future. Temple is repositioning itself to respond effectively to these four areas in its educational programs and research.

Of three major educational initiatives timed for 1998, two involve Tourism and Technology.
The new School of Tourism was approved on May 12. A new College of Science and Technology is before you today for approval. Both schools would become operational next week.

A possible reorganization of Temple's considerable resources and educational programs in the Health fields will be considered in 1999.

That leaves the Global Economy -- the fourth growth field for the next decade. I'm pleased to report that Temple has moved towards the front of the university line in those developments, primarily through the strong leadership of Vice President Bob Reinstein and Dean of Business & Management Moshe Porat and their faculties.

To highlight the globalization of education, I'd like Vice President Bob Reinstein, along with Trustees Ed Kassab, Lewis Gould and Nelson Diaz, to describe a recent trip to Tokyo, Seoul and Beijing. This will highlight the respect for Temple University's international educational programs at the highest level of three nations. Photographs taken by Trustee Diaz afford a backdrop. [VP Reinstein gave his report.]

II.

During this past year, the Board's Strategic Planning Committee, chaired by Dan Polett, and Task Forces led by Trustees Ed Rosen and Ed Kassab, respectively, have played a key leadership role. Faculty members, led by Senate President Don Walters, have afforded perspective and helped energize the debates. Student and alumnae(1) leaders have contributed. And the leadership of Acting Provost Corrinne Caldwell, Tyler Dean Rochelle Toner, Tourism Professor Betsy Barber, Executive Vice President Jim White, CFO Marty Dorph, Vice President and Dean Dick Englert, Vice President Art Pappacostas, and Presidential Assistant Professor Kyriakos Kontopoulos has been exceptional throughout this process. The staff work has also been outstanding.

Now, for the issues before us.

1. Moving Tyler from Elkins Park to Main: SI #3 and #2

This matter, understandably, has engendered passion and beautiful artistic expression, especially when first recommended last year by Provost England. Since then, with some notable exceptions, the discussion has turned to how best to preserve Tyler Art as an excellent and affordable part of the University.

Summarizing the Task Force's and President's Recommendations: the goal is to insure that Tyler remains an outstanding art school well into the 21st century, and to do so in a cost-effective manner which benefits Tyler and the rest of the University.

The proposed move, we believe, will benefit Tyler students educationally and culturally by becoming physically part of this outstanding, comprehensive university, while preserving Tyler’s unique identity as an art school on Main.

The move will, by the new proximity and synergism, also benefit Temple’s other fine arts and performing arts students, faculty and programs in Music, Theater and Dance.

The move will help enrich the education and culture of 25,000 Temple students, faculty, staff and alumni(ae) already on Main, and reap benefits for members of the larger Philadelphia community.

The move also makes sense financially, from both the capital investment and annual operating standpoints.

However, the move would disappoint many alumni(ae) and students whose experiences with Tyler were overwhelmingly in Elkins Park. Art is created in all of life’s venues and teaching is peripatetic, but infatuation or nostalgia about a familiar physical venue often blurs those truths.

Change is always difficult to achieve, and to accept. The question is not what’s popular but what’s right to insure an excellent art school well into the future and one that benefits the entire university.

2. Welcoming the Temple University School of Podiatric Medicine: SI, #3

The merger of the Pennsylvania College of Podiatric Medicine into the University as Temple’s fourth professional school, approved on May 12, is effective on July 1. Podiatry joins Law, Dentistry, and Medicine, and the four catapult Temple University to #1 nationally in first-professional (post-college) students at a public university, exceeding Michigan, Ohio State and Minnesota Universities.

The research potential of Podiatry, as part of the Health Sciences Center and in collaboration with the University’s newly formed College of Science and Technology, is excellent.

I congratulate Senior Vice President Leon S. Malmud for his imaginative and effective leadership in this effort, and we also owe Dick Englert another vote of thanks for accepting the responsibilities as the Acting Chief Administrative Officer on July 1 and until a Dean is appointed. We expect that won’t be a long time because the Dean’s Search Committee, chaired by Pharmacy Dean Peter H. Doukas, appears to be on schedule for an early Summer report to the President.)

3. Reorganizing Arts and Sciences [CAS]: SI, #3

After fifteen months of discussion and lively debate, the Board has before it today the recommendation of its Education Policies Committee to reorganize the College of Arts and Sciences into two colleges. In this process, the Board benefited from recommendations, suggestions and the perspectives of faculty including a presentation to E.P.C.

- The new College of Science and Technology (CST)

  For Temple to maintain its "Carnegie Research I University" profile (or similar appellation) in the future, we believe an organizational model different than CAS is needed -- one that focuses new human and material resources directly on science and technology, with resulting synergies from interdisciplinary research and teaching.

  CST's focused efforts would span: maintenance of the Carnegie Research I University status; major improvement in undergraduate science education in all sciences and technologies, including the educational experience for all undergraduate majors; selective addition of highly qualified, funded researchers as part of Centers such as biotechnology/biomedical sciences, neuroscience, materials science, computer science and information technology; establishment of a center for science education; rehabilitation of all science laboratories and buildings. The College of Engineering would also be included as a "college" within the purview of CST.

  A distinguished scientist would be named Acting Dean on July 1, and with the faculty and Provost, the Acting Dean would map out an ambitious agenda for CST.

- The College of Liberal Arts (CLA):

  The other parts of CAS (humanities, social sciences, psychology) will continue as the College of Liberal Arts led by Dean Carolyn Adams with a renewed commitment to the liberal education of our students.

4. The new Temple University School of Tourism: SI, #3

  The Board's decision in May to establish a School of Tourism is significant as another well-considered response to long-term changes in the market. Tourism is the world's #1 industry, and will soon become Pennsylvania's #1 industry.

  The School of Tourism becomes effective on July 1.

  A blue-ribbon Search Committee has been organized to identify and recommend candidates for the pioneering Director.

  The Director and faculty will be challenged to select those areas of tourism that promise the greatest opportunities for students and for faculty research benefitting this international industry.

  New funds for the School of Tourism initially will come from "The Plan to Renew Temple's Mission" endowment.
5. Undergraduate Admissions:  SI, #4

One of the Strategic Initiatives, you will recall, is "undergraduate admissions." Implementation is on schedule, in quality and quantity.

- For Fall 1997: The plan was for a decrease from 1996 of -5% in new UGs: 4,333 to 4,117 freshmen and transfers. The actual change was an increase of +2.5%, to 4,418.

- For Fall 1998: The plan was for +10% increase over Fall 1996 of new UGs: 4,117 to 4,529 (freshmen and transfers). As of June 24, 1998, 4,531 new UGs are expected.

The quality of the entering classes, by objective criteria, has also increased as planned.

6. Undergraduate Retention:  SI, #5 and #3

"Retention" of matriculated Undergraduates has increased by more than 2%. This is encouraging news. An additional increase of 1% is projected for Fall 1998.

7. Total Matriculated Undergraduates at Temple  SI, #5 and #3

If, as expected, the "retention" rate increases by another 1% for Fall 1998, and the "new admissions" come in as projected:

The matriculated Undergraduate Student Body at Temple University will increase by 2% over last year (15,337 versus 15,075).

8. "Temple Town" and some Main Campus projects:  SI, #2

With the transition of Main into a residential community of scholars and in collaboration with our neighbors, "Temple Town" is taking hold.

Many projects are coming on line in 1998 and 1999. Another major new privately-financed project in "Temple Town" is expected to be announced by Mayor Rendell later this year, and discussions for a Hotel and Conference Center on Temple property Broad Street are continuing.

The 1998-99 projects include:

- The Tuttleman Learning Center: scheduled to open in June 1999

- New Student Residence Hall: scheduled to open in September 1999
New Student Fieldhouse: scheduled to open in May 1999

Barnes and Noble in Vivacqua Hall at The Apollo of Temple: scheduled to open in late December 1998

Restaurant in L.B.C. Student Recreation Center (next to Vivacqua) at The Apollo of Temple: scheduled to open in November 1998

"The Entertainment, Community & Education Center" (Part 6, at The Apollo of Temple): final design expected by Fall, and scheduled to open in June 1999

Park Mall Redevelopment into mixed use, retail and restaurants, office, apartments, and a Bed and Breakfast: Fall 1999 opening appears feasible.

For the sixteenth consecutive year, the University has operated with a balanced budget.

III.

I would like to thank the students, faculty, staff, and graduates for helping make this past year an intellectually exciting and educationally good year. And to the members of this Board of Trustees who volunteer their efforts and expertise on behalf of a university, who do so with a selflessness and commitment to the University's noble mission that is a standard for all of us, and who are entrusted with the long term well-being of the University: thank you, and congratulations.

[Following the President's Report, the Board of Trustees approved all of the recommendations]

Mr. Fox commented that the list of items just gone through in the President's Report is an amazing tribute to the leadership of President Liacouras and the leadership of all the faculty, staff and administration in making it happen. He said that it is not the Trustees, but is President Liacouras and the others who work with him at the University; the Board reviews, advises and consents. The Apollo of Temple is a testament to Peter J. Liacouras. It was his dream and he persevered. Mr. Fox said that The Apollo of Temple has changed what Temple University is perceived to be by the people of Philadelphia.

Mr. Fox stated that we all should feel very good about where we are today. It is never easy at Temple University; we are not the fat cats. We are a university dedicated to enhancing the educational opportunities of students who might not have gotten there otherwise. He said that he personally feels good about what happened at Temple University over the last years and congratulated the Board, the President and the staff for making it happen.

The Board applauded.

7. Tentative University Budget for 1998-1999

Vice President Dorph informed the Trustees that, because our enrollment came in at only a 2.5% decline, we will end the year with no use of the Quasi-endowment and a surplus of about $945,000.

He pointed out that the Tentative University Budget for 1998-1999 (Budget) is in the format of the proposed reorganization. Over all, the Budget increases by about 2.5%-2.75%, depending on Practice Plan accounting. The over all Budget is balanced with an assumed use of $6.6 million of the Quasi-endowment, $3 million of which is proposed to meet University contingencies. The other $2.3 million is for one-time expenditures, and the remaining $1.3 million is for the need to become year 2000 (Y2K) compliant.

President Liacouras thanked Vice President Dorph, who chairs the University Budget Review Committee, a committee composed of all officers, except the President, and three faculty members. The President said that this Budget is primarily the result of that Committee’s hearings and deliberations.

President Liacouras said that Vice President Dorph is an exceptional leader of persons who do not necessarily agree and thanked him again for his leadership.

On motion duly made and seconded, the Board of Trustees voted unanimously to adopt a Tentative University Budget for 1998-1999, as set forth in Highlights of the University’s Tentative Budget for 1998-99, June 25, 1998, which is attached as SUPPLEMENT I to the official copy of these Minutes on file in the Office of the Secretary.

18. Trustees’ Visit to TUJ Graduation, Temple University Korea, and Board of Trustees – Special Meeting, 6/25/98, MINUTES, page 13 of 17
Temple University China
(Messrs. Kassab, Gould, Diaz)

This Report was given by Robert J. Reinstein, Vice President and Dean of the School of Law.

Mr. Reinstein reported that the University’s involvement in international programs began 30 years ago, saying that we were at the forefront of universities in providing opportunities of study abroad for our own students and also for educational exchanges for students abroad. He thanked Chancellor Marvin Wachman, who founded Temple University Japan when he was President of the University. Mr. Reinstein stated that Dr. Wachman also made the initial overtures in China with the awarding of an honorary degree to President Deng.

Another of the University’s major international programs is in Rome, Temple University Rome. Mr. Reinstein said that the program experienced a record enrollment this year, 150 students in the Fall and 170 in the Spring and said that enrollments next year are expected to be 10% higher than they were this year.

Mr. Reinstein said that the School of Law offers a Summer program at the Rome Campus. In addition to the Rome Summer program, the Law School offers programs in Athens and Tel Aviv. The School of Communications and Theater offers a program in London, and the School of Business and Management offers programs in Paris, Ghana, Rome, London and Japan.

Mr. Reinstein showed slides of Temple University Japan (TUJ), including slides of this year’s commencement. The program was founded in 1982. Two hundred students received Temple University Japan degrees in Arts and Sciences, Teaching of English as a Second Language and in Law. Five Ph.D.’s were also awarded.

Mr. Reinstein told the Board that Temple University Japan is physically located in down town Tokyo, and the program is operated without a Japanese partner. Enrollments have increased; the Corporate Education Program is doing very well, and the graduate programs are strong. Also, an Executive MBA is offered at TUJ.

Mr. Reinstein reported that Temple University Japan is presenting a balanced budget. The budget being presented today is now balanced, this since the document was distributed to Trustees.

After attending Commencement at TUJ, the delegation of Trustees and administrators went on to Korea. Temple has 300 alumnae/i in Korea, about 100 of whom are professors at Korean universities. Many of these alumnae/i are graduates from what is now the Esther Boyer College of Music. In fact, Mr. Reinstein said, some of the them gave a concert in honor of President Liacouras.

The University has begun on program in Korea, a Corporate Education Program for employees of City Bank and Motorola. Plans to institute some of the TUJ programs in Korea were put on hold because of the condition of the Korean economy. Mr. Reinstein reported that a fairly large number of Korean students are enrolled on our Philadelphia campus.
The University delegation next traveled to China for an audience with the President of China, and for that visit, the delegation was joined by Drs. Niu and Tuan, retired Temple professors. Ms. Adelaide Ferguson, Assistant Dean of the School of Law, was also a member of the delegation. Mr. Reinstein thanked Ms. Ferguson for all of the work she has done in supervising the international programs.

Mr. Reinstein reported that the Law Program in China will be the first of its kind and said that the President of China was very impressed with our program. The University gifted the President of China with pieces of art created by the students at the Tyler School of Art.

The program offered in China will be an MA in Law with a focus on American and International law. It will be offered at the downtown campus of the China University of Political Science and Law (CUPSL).

President Lliacouras said that this program in China would not have gotten to first base without the leadership of Robert J. Reinstein.
