PRESIDENT’S REPORT – David Adamany

Mr. Chairman: I have a very brief report today. It begins with good news about Temple athletics. Our women’s volleyball team won the Atlantic 10 Conference championship.

Members of the team were named Player of the Year, Setter of the Year, and Rookie of the Year. Two members were named to the All Conference Team. And Coach Bob Bertucci was named Coach of the Year.

The team has made a strong start in the NCAA Division 1 championship competition with wins over Manhattan College and then Pennsylvania State University, the 13th ranked team in the country. Now in the “Sweet 16,” the team will play Florida, the 5th ranked team nationally, in Gainesville this weekend.

Before introducing Coach Bob Bertucci, I want to report that a contingent of about 20 Temple students, two members of the Spirit Squad, the Temple mascot, and Vice President Dick Englert made the trip to Penn State and, despite small numbers, made themselves loudly heard.

Coach Bertucci commented that the volleyball team has represented Temple University to the utmost level, edging out difficult competition, all the while maintaining an average GPA of 3.4. He thanked the Board, President Adamany and Athletics Director Bradshaw for their support.

The President returned to the podium.

The Academic Affairs Committee of the Board of Trustees, whose report is in today’s agenda, held an extensive meeting to extensively review undergraduate academic performance at Temple. We are always on the alert for any signs of weakness in the academic program, and the administration identified for the Committee a number of areas where improvement is possible. Professor Bill Nathan, president of the Faculty Senate, and Professor Eli Goldblatt, chair of the Faculty Senate committee working to reform the Core Curriculum, attended the meeting.
Professor Nathan strongly stated the Faculty Senate’s determination to sweepingly revise the Core Curriculum, which has been in place without significant change since the late 1980s. A full revision of the Core Curriculum is expected to be adopted by this time next year. Creation and revision of courses to meet the new curriculum will then occur over another year.

I am also grateful to the Faculty Senate for adopting this semester new policies on incompletes, withdrawals from classes, and repeating of courses. Each of these policies will strengthen academic standards at Temple. The Faculty Senate has also adopted a policy calling for detailed statements of expectations in each course, so that students will have better guidance about course goals and course requirements.

In addition, the Senate is working on a policy to require early evaluation of students in all freshman and sophomore courses. Its purpose is to provide both an early warning to students who may not be meeting academic requirements and to allow intervention by colleges and the University to assist such students.

A joint committee of the Faculty Senate and administration has been working for two years to develop a standard method for students to evaluate all courses and teaching in those courses. A pilot project was conducted last year in the College of Education, the Fox School of Business and Management, the Beasley School of Law, and the Intellectual Heritage Program. The pilot project was successful; and this year course and teaching evaluations will be conducted in all classes throughout the University. The Provost has sent a message to all members of the faculty reminding them that evaluation of courses and teaching is now University policy; and he has sent a letter to all students telling them about this process and reminding them of their responsibility to participate thoughtfully in it.

The principal purpose of these evaluations will be to provide faculty with information about strong points and weaknesses in courses. These evaluations may also be used as information in deliberations on tenure, promotion, and merit salary increases. The Faculty Senate has requested that the use of this information for tenure, promotion, and merit pay be deferred for one semester, so that the full results of the University-wide evaluation of teaching can be reviewed. The Provost and I have this request under consideration. It is useful to note in this regard that hundreds of universities across the country have such systems and have had them for many years. We will certainly listen carefully to the Faculty Senate to understand why full use of evaluations should be deferred for a semester; but in any case, with the help of the Senate, Temple will very soon have extensive student information about the quality of courses and the quality of teaching.

All of these steps are directed at improving the effectiveness of our undergraduate educational program. Other steps, especially to strengthen graduate programs, will follow this year and next. But the central issue of educational reform at Temple will be revision of the mandatory Core Curriculum. We can be grateful to the faculty for undertaking this monumental task with such seriousness of purpose.
The Academic Affairs Committee and this Board should expect to receive regular reports on these academic changes in the year ahead and to have some major curricular changes presented to you for discussion and approval.

I close by extending to each of you, on behalf of Temple's students, faculty, staff and administration, our gratitude for your leadership of the University this past year and our best wishes for a joyous holiday season and fulfilling New Year.

8. Report

Mr. Marshall reported that a five-year agreement has been concluded with Independence Blue Cross. The Health System is ahead of budget. For the period ending 10/31/02, the Health System reported losses from operations of $3.7 million versus a budgeted loss of $17.6 million. Liquidity remains strong, with a balance of slightly over $300 million.

The Report of the Temple University Health System was received as given in Agenda Reference 8.

Mr. Gittis stated that Mr. Marshall has been remarkably successful as the Chief Executive Officer and Chairman of the Health System on a full-time basis. The Health System is facing complicated issues. Satellite operations are being consolidated; a few nursing homes have been closed; and, in the case of Lower Bucks, the Affiliation Agreement has been revised. A major issue is the escalating costs of malpractice insurance. In fiscal year 2002, the cost of coverage was $39 million vs. $62 million in fiscal year 2003. In some cases, the cost of malpractice insurance exceeds a physician’s revenues.
