PRESIDENT’S REPORT – David Adamany

Mr. Chairman:

Temple is off to an outstanding start for the new academic year.

Although we believe we have about reached our enrollment capacity, we again saw a small increase in total enrollment—from 34,078 to 34,309.

Our application pool for the freshmen class continues to grow, from 16,966 last year to 17,363 this year, and up 40 percent (from 12,436) in 2000.

The quality of the applicant pool and therefore the freshman class also continues to improve dramatically. The average SAT score was 1036 in 2000, 1088 last year and 1098 this year, or up 62 points in five years. To provide perspective, the average SAT score nationally is 1026 and in Pennsylvania 1003.

The average freshman enters this year with a grade point average of 3.29, up from 3.00 in 2000 and 3.24 last year.

We’re very pleased that the number and percentage of minority students in the entering class has also increased, adding to Temple’s national reputation for diversity. That reputation was confirmed again recently by the Princeton Review which ranked Temple No. 2 in diversity among the 361 top colleges and universities in the nation.

This fall the national spotlight has been focused on Hurricane Katrina and its devastating aftermath. Temple joined colleges and universities across the United States in making available educational opportunities for students from the many colleges and universities closed by the hurricane. We are proud that Temple’s excellent national reputation and our known hospitality to all students has allowed us to serve so many displaced students. A total of 46 students from the New Orleans area enrolled at Temple this semester, including: 5 from Tulane; 13 from the University of New Orleans, the urban public university in that region; 5 from Loyola, a fine liberal arts college; and 13 from Xavier, one of the most prominent of this nation’s historically black colleges.

Across the United States, colleges and universities have taken in these displaced students on a basis that gives the institutions of higher education in New Orleans an opportunity to survive and revive. All of us are taking students without tuition as long as they continue to pay tuition to their home institutions. This allows the colleges and universities in New Orleans to continue to pay faculty and staff, who would otherwise be laid off—adding to the tragedy in that region. Of course students who live in our dorms and join our dining programs—about 15 percent of those who have enrolled at Temple, pay for room and board. I want to also single out our neighbors at Brighthope Baptist Church for their efforts to house and provide support for students from New Orleans, particularly those students from Xavier.
There is much, much more going on at Temple—curricular revision, faculty recruitment, new construction, vibrant campus life, and research initiatives. I will try to provide reports on those developments at later meetings or in writing. However, I would like to conclude by saying a word about Temple’s people.

First, I want the Board to know that 950 Temple faculty and staff attended a rally at the Liacouras Center to kick off the faculty-staff part of the campaign for Temple that is in the planning stages. More than 70 have stepped forward to serve on the University-wide steering committee that will be chaired by Dick Engleit, the deputy provost, Alvin Greenspan, a retired professor of Engineering, and Audrey Ukhsis, one of our faculty physicians who is also associate dean of the Medical School. The rally was marked by very high spirits by those in attendance. I am confident that faculty and staff will enthusiastically and fully support the proposed campaign to strengthen Temple. I am proud to let you know that the University’s deans and officers have already personally pledged almost $700,000 to the campaign.

Second, I want to acknowledge Coach Bobby Wallace’s announcement yesterday that he will be stepping aside as head football coach at the end of this season. I am grateful to Coach Wallace for serving Temple in the football program’s most difficult time in our long history. He nurtured and sustained his team when we were dropped from the Big East Conference and no one knew whether or when we would again have a major conference affiliation. Coach Wallace kept his team together and spirits up when we struggled to create suitable practice facilities—which, with his help, we eventually did. He maintained team spirit again when it was unclear whether we would have a stadium in which to play. And I can personally attest that he mentored students, insisted on high standards of personal behavior by his athletes, and instilled in them the urgency to improve their academic performance. Those who measure Coach Wallace by a win-loss record that disappointed us all—and no one has been more disappointed than Bobby Wallace—will have missed the most important contribution that any of us can make: he profoundly influenced his players to practice and play hard against daunting odds, to be honorable on the field and off, and to get a good education that will be the basis for their later lives. Coach Wallace’s legacy will be the contributions hundreds of young men who he coached will make as parents, community leaders, and productive citizens. I personally thank Coach Wallace for his service to Temple, knowing that his legacy in young men is profound and indelible.

Third, Mr. Chairman, it is my pleasure to introduce some newcomers to Temple. Rhonda Brown has come to us from Notre Dame to be associate vice president for multi-cultural affairs. Rhonda will be responsible for our affirmative action program, for assuring equity and fairness for employees and students who feel they have been treated unfairly, for expanding our relations with women-owned and minority-owned businesses, and for a mentoring program for freshmen for whom the adjustment to University life may be difficult.

Vanessa Rose met some of you at the meeting of the Joint Committees last spring, but many members of the Board did not have an opportunity to be introduced to her at that time. Vanessa comes as Associate Vice President for Management and Budget, heading our budget office and overseeing a small staff of analysts who are undertaking the examination of many of our non-academic operations to find opportunities for greater efficiency and effectiveness. Vanessa has come from Wayne State University where she headed the budget office, and she had many years of work in the private sector before assuming that responsibility.
Although he can not be with us today, I want to say a word about Keith Morrison, the new Dean of the Tyler School of Art. Keith is a distinguished painter and printmaker and a nationally known teacher of art. He has a wonderful record of arts administration at the San Francisco Art Institute, the University of Maryland, where he was dean for arts and humanities, the University of Illinois at Chicago, and most recently San Francisco State University, where he was dean of fine and creative arts. Keith comes at a turning point in Tyler’s history, when its longstanding programs at Elkins Park—about 60 percent of the Tyler School’s programs—are preparing to move to the main campus and to new facilities. At a critical moment in Tyler’s history, Temple is fortunate to have recruited Dean Morrison.

I conclude, Mr. Chairman, by extending my thanks to Dick Chant, our retiring Budget Director. Dick is a Philadelphian, born and bred. He attended Northeast high school, earned his undergraduate degree from Temple in political science and his graduate degree from another prominent university in Philadelphia. He began his career in the City of Philadelphia Budget Bureau, rising to the position of Budget Director for the City. He achieved a balanced budget every year under Mayors Tate, Rizzo and Green. He came to Temple as Associate Vice President for Budget and Fiscal Planning in December 1983, when our budget was $300 million. Despite the best efforts by Peter Liacouras and me, Dick achieved balanced budgets every year—in some very bad years and some reasonably good ones. The budget we adopted this year, which Dick skillfully created, is more than $800 million, not including another $120 million in grants and contracts that will be received during the year. When Dick came to Temple our operating surplus was $593,000 and our cash and investments totaled $9.8 million, including the Hospital. As he leaves Temple, we have an operating surplus of $165 million and cash and investments of $590 million, but not including the Hospital. In the words of a once popular song: “you’ve come a long way, baby.” Dick and his wife Yvette will be retiring to Margate, New Jersey, to enjoy leisure time, hobbies, and some time with their four children. Dick, we thank you for your devotion and effective service to Temple, and we wish you well. (And please leave me your phone number, so I can call when I get into budget trouble.)

Mr. Chairman, this concludes my report.

OLD BUSINESS
NEW BUSINESS

Mr. Gittis stated that serving as Chairman of the Board for the past six years has been a rare privilege and great honor. Enormous progress has occurred at this remarkable institution over these past years. The Board has achieved great results, and we have a student body, faculty, and administrators who are dedicated to this University.

Six or seven years as Chair is long enough, and this is a good time for a change to occur. I, therefore, will serve this year as Chair, and I will be as diligent as ever, but this will be my last year. I want the Board to know that I will not serve as Chairman for the October 2006 term.

Thank you for electing me again and for all your support.

Vice Chair Scirica stated that it is with a heavy heart that he hears this information. On behalf of the Board of Trustees, we are deeply grateful for what Howard has done for this University, for the friendship and the guidance he has given us. No one has had more of an impact on this region. Although we share Mr. Gittis with New York, we know that he regards this as his home. We will honor him at the appropriate time.

President Adamany remarked that this is his 20\textsuperscript{th} year serving as a University President and his 27\textsuperscript{th} year as an administrator. Without hesitation, working with Howard Gittis has been the experience of a lifetime. The President stated that Mr. Gittis has had a profound impact on the University, and that it has been a privilege to work with him.

ADJOURNMENT The meeting adjourned at 3:40 p.m.
