ACTING PRESIDENT’S REPORT

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and members of the Board, for the opportunity to make this presentation and thank you for the even greater opportunity you will be according me later in the agenda.

As Provost for the past two years I have been most fortunate to work closely with our outstanding deans. I would like to salute these great leaders whose work is so vital to the core mission of our great university.

The deans are the key members of the University’s leadership team. They are talented, scholarly, totally committed to our students and innovative in crafting novel approaches to achieve our academic mission while at the same time finding ways to become more efficient. In the midst of the budgetary challenges of the past few years, the deans continue to reengineer how we conduct our business while still maintaining and increasing the excellence of our programs.

The key roles of our deans are outlined as follows:

- The deans are the CEOs of our schools and colleges.
- They are the leaders of our distinguished faculties.
- They recruit our faculty and student talent, and this may be their most important role.
- As entrepreneurs, they seek out new opportunities and address the many challenges their schools face.
- They think strategically to position their schools for the future.
- They are integral to our ability to raise funds in support of our mission.
- And they serve as both strong advocates for their schools and as the chief spokespersons representing their schools within the university and within the broader society.

I will briefly mention just a couple of highlights about each of our deans. The handout in front of you has detailed that you may review at your leisure.

Dr. Ken Blank oversees our research and graduate programs. He has successfully forged partnerships with government and private industry for technology development, for licensing and for commercialization of our intellectual properties and scientific advances.

Dr. Hai-Lung Dai has sparked a resurgence in our enrollments, in our research funding and in our rankings in science and technology. He has recruited star faculty and developed innovative programming to attract international students.

Dr. James Earl Davis stepped up to become interim dean of education. He has been an excellent mentor for junior faculty, including Dr. Cromley, who received the very prestigious United States Presidential Early Career Award for Scientists and Engineers.

Our longest serving Dean, Dr. Peter Doukas, has helped catapult our Pharmacy School in the rankings. Working with his top faculty, he has crafted our drug discovery initiative that already is paying off in innovative partnership with top institutions.

Next is Dean JoAnne Epps of the Beasley School, which, under her capable leadership, continues to climb in the national rankings with programs in the top 20 nationally and with very high bar passage rates. We’re proud the Mayor has appointed her to monitor the City’s “stop and frisk” practices.
Dean Amid Ismail has revitalized the Kornberg School's professional preparation programs, its patient care clinics and its community engagement. He has dramatically increased clinical revenues. He is an international leader in building bridges and pursuing across borders through dentistry.

Dean Tom Jacobson is interim dean for Communications & Theater. He secured William Penn Foundation funding for public interest journalism and he has significantly increased the research productivity of his school.

Dr. Larry Kaiser needs no introduction; we already are familiar with his many accomplishments in his various roles. As dean, he has successfully recruited outstanding department chairs and faculty members, and the Medical School continues to rise in national rankings and is achieving growing research and prominence.

Dean Carol Lang oversees a library that has risen from #83 to #57 in national rankings over the past 9 years. This past year she has led the library's fundraising efforts, with dollars that are more than triple the unit's annual goal, while acquiring major collections invaluable to our research and education.

Under Dean John Mattiacci's leadership, our School of Podiatric Medicine has the most applicants and the academically-best applicants in the country for a school of podiatry. His clinical operations have over 42,000 visits per year, including 8,500 visits to our state-of-the-art diabetic wound care clinic.

Dean Moshe Porat has taken the Fox School to the upper echelons of business schools in the world. He continues to generate innovations to maintain the School's competitiveness in a tough market, including a new strategy called "discover the Power of Fox." His students' job placement rates are an astounding 92% for undergrads and 95% for graduate students.

Thanks to Dean Keya Sadeghipour, engineering enrollments are booming, as is the growth in the college's external funding for research. He established the new department of bioengineering, and the faculty members he has hired are highly productive in research funding.

The enrollments in Interim Dean Michael Sitler's college have increased by 33% over five years, and his college's external funding is so strong that it now ranks 3rd in the University. His steady hand has helped to bring vision and strategic focus to the college.

Overseeing our second largest college in terms of enrollment and research funding, Dean Teresa Soufas has led restructuring efforts throughout administrative and academic departments. She has also led the development of a number of international initiatives as well as targeted certificate programs.

Dean Robert Stroker has brought a new level of integration to our arts programs throughout the university. He oversees our great Boyer College of Music and Dance and has provided leadership for our nationally-ranked Tyler School of Art. His initiatives include achievement of a Grammy nomination and securing a multi-million dollar grant for the George and Joy Abbott Center for Musical Theater.

Temple Rome's enrollments continue to increase under Dean Kim Strommen. He has overseen a major expansion of the facilities, and he has developed multiple collaborations with important institutions in Italy.

Finally, Dean Bruce Stronach exhibited exemplary leadership in helping Temple University Japan to navigate successfully the aftermath of the earthquake and tsunami more than a year ago. He has stabilized the budget and worked to design innovative programs to attract new students.
This concludes my report, Mr. Chairman. With us today are some of the deans, I would like to ask them to stand so that we can recognize their outstanding leadership and many contributions.
